

Your Right to Receive a Good Faith Estimate

Effective Date: July 21, 2026

You have the right to receive a Good Faith Estimate explaining how much your health care may cost before services are provided.

Who receives a Good Faith Estimate?

If you do not have health insurance, or if you choose not to use your insurance for a service, you generally have the right to receive an estimate of the expected cost of scheduled health care items and services.

What you can expect

- You may request a Good Faith Estimate before scheduling a service.
- When you schedule care far enough in advance, the Practice will provide the estimate within the time required by federal law.
- The estimate will be provided in writing or electronically and will describe the reasonably expected charges known at that time.
- A Good Faith Estimate is not a bill, contract, or guarantee of the final cost. Unexpected or additional services may affect the final amount.

If the bill is substantially higher

If a bill from a provider or facility is at least $400 more than the amount listed for that provider or facility on your Good Faith Estimate, you may be eligible to use the federal patient-provider dispute resolution process. Keep a copy of your estimate and your bill.
